

Quinnipiac University School of Law
presents a symposium on
Litigation and Discovery in the Digital Age

March 23, 2017

1:00pm-5:30pm

370 Bassett Road, North Haven, CT 06473

Registration begins at 12:15pm

Reception at 5:30pm

Technology has dramatically changed the practice of law and reshaped the discovery process in litigation. Understanding the basics of discovery in the digital age along with the opportunities and challenges it brings enables lawyers to meet their ethical obligations and serve their clients.

The symposium will begin with a view from the bench, provided by The Honorable Maria Kahn and The Honorable Douglas Lavine. Additional panels will focus on Cybersecurity, eDiscovery Ethics, and Sources of Discoverable Data beyond e-mail. * Connecticut and New York CLE credit will be requested.

Confirmed speakers include Amy DeCesare, Gail Gottehrer, Judy Selby, Dianna McCarthy, Jennifer Rothstein, Brendon Levesque, Andrea Donovan Napp, Eddie Chang, Matt Curtin, Jay Brudz, and Seth Eichenholtz.

This symposium is sponsored by the Quinnipiac Law Review, Women in Cyber, and FTI.

RSVP to Nellie Scoble: Nellie.Scoble@quinnipiac.edu

